

CASRO is the only organization that links a network of market research CEOs and senior executives in an environment that enables them to learn from one another and access the resources and insights they need to lead effectively.

Each year the market research industry's top executives gather at CASRO's Annual Conference to discuss business trends, legislative issues, association initiatives, industry survey results and to learn from renowned speakers and peer leaders. This is a rare opportunity to connect with these decision makers. Why waste time and effort on promotional materials and phone calls with just the hope of getting noticed? Engage directly in a collegial, professional setting at session breaks, meals, cocktail receptions, and recreation outings.
